INTERESTING ITEMS FROM EL VERANO AND VICINITY.

Weekly Record of all the Happenings in His Town as Faithfully Recorded by Our Wide-Awake Reporter, "Archie McKiver."

Tony Cereghino and Jake Friderger of Glen Ellen were in town Monday.

Mr. Chelini of the Bay City, father of our local coal merchant, was in town Sunday.

Mrs. Theodor Richards of Agua Caliente Springs spent the fore part of the week in the metropolis.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Norrbom and Mr. and Mrs. Archie Gale motored to Santa Rosa Saturday evening.

Al. Benham, a well-known grocery drummer with Wellman, Peck & Co. of the Bay City, was here Monday.

Andrew Goess, well-known Sonoma contractor and builder, was an S. P. passenger for the city Monday morning.

Wm. Wyatt went to the city Saturday, where he met a sister from Nevada whom he had not seen in thirty-six years.

Tree inspector Johnson of Glen Ellen was here Monday on a tour of inspection concerning some trees at the S. P. depot here.

The many friends here of Mrs. Mary Friderger were pained to hear of her death. A large number of friends from this place attended the funeral Tuesday.

Don't forget the first grand ball to be given by the El Verano Development Association, Saturday evening, February 22nd. A good time is assured to all those who attend.

Who says the new parcels post is not alright? Back in Batavia, Ohio, they have successfully sent a live baby through the mails. The midwife weighed eleven pounds and the postage amounted to fifteen cents.

The "Sonoma Index-Tribune" is the big thing here every Friday evening. No matter where you go some one can be found eating up the news. Subscribe for the Index-Tribune and you will get a live paper.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Poulsen and Mr. J. Vincent and family went to Santa Rosa and Petaluma Sunday in the former's new five-passenger touring car. The benzine wagon is a peach and the owners are well satisfied with it.

The many friends of Tommie Crowe, a well-known news boy of San Francisco, and who has been coming here the past few years to spend his summer vacations, were surprised to hear of his death last week. He succumbed to pneumonia.

"Sorry to hear, Easy Jim, that the Chicken Colony pink-eyed widow of yours at Schellville has given you the go by. If that winsome widow of mine in Frisco gives Archie the 'double cross' I'll advertise for one and you had better follow suit and we'll make it a double."

There is a small war raging among the drays in the northwestern part of the valley. It is claimed that one of the big leaders is up a tree and like a pack of howling hounds his followers are waiting for him to come down from his roost. "When thieves fall out honest men come by their own."

Three of our young sportsmen, John Basilou, Willie Baines and Johnnie Roche, were on a hunting expedition in the western foot hills last Sunday. The boys had good luck, bagging a number of different kinds of game. Our barber tells your reporter that he wounded a large jack rabbit and that his two partners gave chase to the hare, running it into Fowler creek. The result was that the boys went over their heads in water and on capturing the hare it was found to be full of lumps. Of course Johnnie had the "hoss" laugh on the world-be greyhounds, who claim they will never go hunting again.

Miss Myrtle Minkel was in San Francisco Saturday.

Lary Larsen was in the Exposition City Sunday renewing old acquaintances.

Joe Harbinger, the well-known poultry raiser, attended to business at the county seat last Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Riser and son Lloyd have moved to Oakland where they will reside in the future.

Jack Butler of the metropolis is a guest at Fest's Farm. Jack likes this valley and will remain several months.

Chas. Ellis, a local chicken rancher, was busy one day this week unloading a carload of corn and hauling it to his ranch.

Emile Lounibos of Kenwood was here the latter part of the week visiting his brother who is dangerously ill at the Victoria Hotel.

Roy Chance, one of our young men, has accepted the position of teamster for the El Verano feed store, Heine Brunner having thrown up the job.

Wm. Barlowe, the new roadmaster of the western division of the S. P. Co., who takes the place of roadmaster Rolland, who goes to the Stockton division, passed through here the latter part of the week on an inspection tour of his new division.

J. Harry Weise, our new Supervisor, was in town the latter part of last week and with roadmaster Serres was looking over our county roads. The new Supervisor received many congratulations and carries the burdens of his office with ease, class and dignity.

August Marcy and Jap Valente, two of Sonoma's leading society chaps, visited here Sunday. Jap is some rag time singer and his sweet and melodious voice was heard in the vicinity of Verano. Mum is the word. You are alright, Jap, and the Orpheum circuit in San Francisco does not know you are idle.

Ronald McDowell and Peter Keil, two of Sonoma's popular young business men, were visitors to our town last Saturday. When interviewed by your reporter as to the condition of Sonoma, they said that it was dead and gone and that they had to come to this burg to see some life. They also will put in their application for members to our new club, the El Verano Development Association.

The new depot opposite Fetter's Hot Springs, on the N. W. P. railroad, has been commenced. It will cost, it is said, four thousand dollars. It is also reported that a petition is going around to have a postoffice at this popular resort. Mr. Ringressey will act as station agent at this point and also as postmaster if an office is established. The postoffice to be in his store at that point. A side track has also been put in by the railroad company.

There is certainly some class to the new Index-Tribune reporter at Glen Ellen, and everybody down this way is wondering who "Hap" is. Some think it might be George Hardman, Bigelow's reporter on the prohibition sheet in Sonoma during the wet and dry fight last Spring. But we think different as George never set the valley a fire with his great bull. Of course poor George is not to be blamed. He thought he had a good thing and certainly pulled it along, but as a newspaper man he is out of the running and did a wise thing when he retired.

It is slowly but surely leaking out that there is some underhand work going on in the form of a petition to reduce the number of saloons in this valley to six. A number of prominent club women, it is said, are at the back of this latest scheme to create mischief in our midst at the behest of a number of religious fanatics. The further away our religious denominations keep away from mixing up in this so-called saloon agitation the better it will be for church pastors and members. Let the women attend to their home affairs and religious duties if they so desire. If they do not do so it will not only disrupt the various church organizations and split up their congregations into factions but eventually the whole valley will go dry. In the end those citizens who have been fighting to keep the saloons open will become disgusted at this old petition bull and when the next Local Option election comes around they will vote with the drays and be done with it. Most people in this valley believe in the motto, "Live and let live," and that all the saloons should again be opened to the public.

F. LaFranchi transacted business in Santa Rosa Tuesday.

Miss Amy O'Conner of Santa Rosa is a guest at the Murray residence.

Deputy Sheriff Joe Ryan was out in Chicken Town Tuesday on official business.

H. P. Mathewson has been appointed a notary public for Sonoma county for the third time.

Frank Benjamin and Dave Forni spent Saturday hunting ducks in the vicinity of Wingo and shot the limit.

Henry Koerner returned home from the metropolis the fore part of the week, where he had been transacting business for several days.

It is rumored here that the real estate firm that has recently purchased the O. W. Nordwell ranch will plant out 5000 fruit trees the coming spring.

Willie Hoppe, the crack lightweight San Francisco boxer, who trained at the Parente training camp for his battle with Frankie Smith in the Bay City last Friday evening, won the decision after a hard fought battle.

For the first time our new and popular young roadmaster is having all our bridges cleaned up. Mr. Serres has brought into play a long-felt need and it is his intention to have the bridges swept once or twice a week, which should have been done many years ago.

One of the worst of the late agitators for drying up this valley and putting it on the down grade left for Oakland on last Monday morning's S. P. train, much to the relief of a long suffering community. One by one slowly but surely these mischief-making agitators are making their get-away, and the few that now remain are beginning to realize that the bunch of drays that were scheduled to run the valley are fast fading away, and there is a look of sadness on the faces of those that remain.

There was no ceremony at the Southern Pacific depot here Monday morning. Unwep, unbonored and unsung the dry agitator boarded the train and not even one present cared to grasp his hand for a parting handshake. In short all were glad that the valley had at last got rid of him. Next, please.

Card Party a Success

The card party given by the Sonoma Valley Woman's Club for the benefit of the Club house fund on Friday evening of last week was both a social and financial success. The affair was held in the club rooms in the Schocken building on Spain street and drew a fine crowd. During the evening light refreshments were served and singing and dancing and games wound up the evening's entertainment.

An Important Meeting

At the suggestion of Mayor M. E. Cummings a special meeting of the Board of City Trustees has been called for Monday evening, February 3d, to discuss the proposition of water rates and a better system of fire protection to which the general public is invited to attend and take part in discussing these local problems. This meeting will be fraught with much importance as something must be done quickly to afford better water facilities for fire-fighting purposes and every citizen who can do so should attend.

CITY TRUSTEES IN SPECIAL SESSION

Discuss an Auxiliary Fire Protection System for Sonoma and Many Other Matters

At the special meeting of the Board of City Trustees, held last Monday evening, at which all the members were present, Mayor Cummings explained the object of the meeting to be to discuss a better fire protection water system and water rates for the city.

After considerable discussion among the members it was finally decided to call a mass meeting of citizens to be held next Monday night in the City Hall, to give taxpayers and citizens generally an opportunity to express themselves on the matter at issue.

There will be three propositions to be discussed at next Monday's meeting as follows:

No one—The proposition of the Sonoma City Water Works Co. to erect water tanks on the hill north of its springs, which will give a fall of about 130 feet (100 feet fall will give approximately 43 pounds pressure). The water to be conveyed from the tanks by pipes down First-street West to the north west corner of the Plaza and in case of fire to be turned into the mains of the company. The cost of this investment will entail an outlay of about $8000.00 on the part of the water company. On this investment the water people figure that they are entitled to at least 6 per cent interest, taxes and a fair business profit—approximately $900 per annum.

No two—The City of Sonoma to build a 100,000 gallon cement reservoir on the hill facing Second-street East with a fall of 250 feet, the water to be pumped from the city's artesian wells, pipes to be laid in the principal part of the city. Cost of this plant $11,000 or $12,000. Interest on investment $900; pumping and incidentals $50, making a total annual outlay of $950 for the first year, which would be reduced each year as the principal on the investment is paid off. This system will give a continuous pressure and in case of fire there would be no faucets to be turned on by private parties—the fire-fighters to have full benefit of the 250 feet of pressure.

No three—The City of Sonoma to pipe the principal streets of town and in case of fire to pump directly into the mains with a high pressure pump from the city's artesian wells on Second-street West. By this system no faucets would be opened by private parties in case of fire. This kind of system was recommended to the City Council of Santa Rosa on Friday of last week by Messrs. Fortman & Stahl of the Board of Fire Underwriters as giving greater efficiency than that city had at present—in other words it could do away with its fire engines and save that expense. The estimated cost of this proposition would be $9000; interest, pumping and incidentals per annum $725 for the first year, which would be reduced each year as the principal is paid off.

These are the three propositions that have so far presented themselves to the Board in discussing the fire protection problem, and there may be others for ought we know. This will be made manifest at the mass meeting which the Trustees have called for next Monday night, and which ought to bring out every citizen of this city having the interests of the town at heart, and we sincerely trust it will do so.

THAT SALOON MAN MRS. FETTERS WINS ACQUITTED BY JURY IN SUPERIOR COURT.

After Being Out all Night Render Verdict in Favor of Roberts, the Accused

The jury in the case of F. Roberts, on trial the fore part of the week in the Superior of this county, charged with violating the Anti-Roadhouse ordinance, after being out all night Tuesday, came into court Wednesday morning with a verdict of acquittal.

Roberts was accused of selling beer to a customer in dry territory. The case was taken up Tuesday morning and most of the morning hours were occupied in securing a jury. Assistant District Attorney G. W. Hoyle represented the People in the prosecution, and Attorney Ross Campbell appeared for the defendant.

The jury was secured from the first sixteen men in the box, consisting of Messrs. David Peny, W. S. Walters, Harry Hall, George McCutchan, Chas. Matthews, John S'one, Henry Boesen, J. Rickman, Henry Raymond, Joseph Keechler, Harry Cummings and Frank Roberts.

Joseph Davis, the complaining witness, was the first to testify, and was followed in turn by John Davis, Everett Close, Archie Hull, Assistant District Attorney G. W. Hoyle, Justice A. J. Atchinson, J. J. Murphy, Arthur F. Price, analytical chemist. Two bottles which it was shown contained liquids carrying 2.82 per cent alcohol, were offered in evidence as the bottles sold and on which the complaint was based. The reporter's transcript of evidence at the preliminary examination was also read to the jury.

A motion by Attorney Ross Campbell for the Court to instruct the jury to acquit for lack of evidence was denied, after which Mary Roberts, Mrs. J. Ewald and Jack Williams took the stand for the defendant.

In rebuttal Justice Atchinson, Deputy District Attorney J. W. Ford, and chemist Arthur Price were called by the prosecution.

After arguments and the instructions of the Court the case went to the jury shortly before 6 o'clock. The jury was then taken to dinner and by 7 o'clock retired for deliberation. Once during the evening the jury asked the Court regarding the penalty of the offense.

They were informed that the penalty had nothing to do with their part of the case. Having announced shortly before 10 o'clock that they could not agree on a verdict, the Court ordered that they be locked up for the night and went home.

Arthur Price, the chemist, testified that beer contained 3.80 per cent alcohol, and the near-beer being sold generally in dry territory 2.80 per cent. The United States standard limits the alcohol in near beer 2 per cent, all over that being claimed as real beer. The Wylie Local Option law fixes the limit at 1 per cent. This would place near beer under the ban of the law.

VINEBURG NEWS ITEMS

"Easy Jim" Tells in an Interesting Way all About the Week's Happenings in and About His Section of the Valley.

Mr. Colli was here from the city on Friday of last week for a short visit.

F. Patis made his usual weekly business trip to the metropolis on Monday.

Ralph Murphy and family were visitors to the Thomas home Tuesday afternoon.

Henry Gundlach of the metropolis transacted business at Rhinefarm Saturday.

Julius Fochetti Jr., the well-known young blacksmith of Sonoma, was a visitor in Vineburg Sunday.

Mrs. Louis Rouque and daughter were visitors to San Francisco Monday as guests of friends and relatives.

O. W. Sohl and son of the Bay City spent Saturday night and Sunday at their country home near here.

Pleasant weather enticed many visitors to this burg Sunday from all parts of the valley and Bay Cities. Vineburg is alight.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Batto and family, with Miss Adele Andrieux as a guest, motored to Petaluma Saturday and enjoyed a pleasant trip.

A 25-ton carload of coal landed on Batto's spur one day last week and now Vineburg has coal to burn and the rest of the valley for that matter.

Erhard Steiger has on his ranch a promising young draught colt. The young equine beauty is only seventeen months old and weighs just 1450 pounds.

Happy Jep Valente was in this burg Monday. Some one said he was looking for "Minnie Madden," but it's no use, Jep, Minnie does not like "lemon pie."

The following citizens of this vicinity transacted business in Santa Rosa Tuesday: Fred. Batto, Henry Hauer, Mr. Schrumpp, Enrico Fornio and Theo. Antunien.

I thought that my brother reporter Archie McKiver would soon forget his winsome widow and return to his first love Belle Brandon. "That's right, Archie, don't give up the old folks for the new."

Our popular station agent Greve Rubke met with a painful accident one day last week by stepping on a nail which penetrated his foot. We are glad to hear that he is all right now. Let the nails alone, Grover.

Messrs. Von Hatch, Prestwood and Cummings passed through this burg Sunday morning en route to San Francisco to meet some of the grand officers of the N. S. G. W. Fannie Ferndale, one of my staff artists, was very anxious to see His Honor, the Mayor of Sonoma, on his return in the evening but as she had the skate fever, the lost a skate and missed the train. Two skates, Fannie, is too much for any one.

Leonard Thomas and Leland Volquardsen have just completed a motor boat, which they intend to use for hunting and fishing purposes. The trim little craft is surely a credit to the two young Vineburg mechanics.

Joe Ryan, the popular constable and Deputy Sheriff of Sonoma Township, passed through North Vineburg Monday, and we heard one fair maiden remark: "Don't you think Josie is looking quite well?" You bet you.

Easy Jim

A great many people have asked me the question when are the Native Sons of Sonoma Parlor going to reproduce the minstrel performance that was rendered by local talent on the evening of December 14, 1912, at the Union Hall. On that evening the weather was so inclement that not many people could attend one of the best minstrel shows ever seen in Sonoma. I wrote it up and yours truly knows what she is talking about. Please answer and let me know if you hear anything.

A certain young society man in this vicinity should make good his promise and send that handsome young lady in Mill Valley that box of candy. In case he cannot send her candy send her an empty box by express so that her lady friends cannot josh her about the society men of Vineburg.

A dancing school has been organized in Vineburg under the management of George McGill and will meet every Thursday evening at Fornio's Hall. The initial dance last Thursday evening was a grand success. A large number of people were present and enjoyed themselves. There will be dancing school three Thursday evenings in the month and a social dance on the fourth Thursday evening.

After a week's sojourn in our city M. Sobbe took Sunday afternoon's train to be back to his work in Woodland Monday morning.

J. H. Weise, our new Supervisor, passed through town Saturday. Harry is busy inspecting the new crews that are now working on the roads throughout the valley.

Happy notes that Paul Bradley, working out with J. Trusty, is getting in shape for a strenuous baseball season this year. Paul's record of wins last season was one to be proud of.

A. Cheffers, while acting as receiver for pitcher Ben Greeley's new ball, The Jump Drop, had two of his fingers badly fractured one day this week. With this new one working Ben expects to win many games this season.

The Women of Woodcraft will give a delightful whist party next Tuesday evening at Chauvet Hall. After the full series are played refreshments and a nice supper will be served. Everyone is invited. Score cards will be but 25 cents and will include refreshments.

M. and Mrs. A. B. Cheffers were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jack London last Tuesday and partook of a delightful luncheon which was served in the noted author's room, after which Jack displayed his known skill in parlor magic to the amusement of all. The balance of the afternoon was spent horseback riding over the many beautiful trails and inspecting London's new home which he expects to occupy next winter.

Mrs. Mary Friderger, mother of Miss M. Friderger, Miss L. Friderger, Mrs. Wm. Provines, Mrs. A. Cereghino and Messrs. D. Friderger, J. Friderger and the late John Friderger, passed away in Napa City Saturday night. She was buried in Mountain Cemetery in Sonoma on Tuesday. The death of Mrs. Friderger marks the passing over the divide of one of Glen Ellen's oldest pioneers.

At the meeting of the Glen Ellen Athletic Club last Monday arrangements were made for the installation of a new base ball diamond, which when finished will be second to none in the county. With strong financial backing from our business men Glen Ellen will have an unusually strong team. Through the Seals' winter scout, Jack McCarthy, arrangements were made for a series of games with the Seals the first week in March.

HAPPY.

Fetters vs. Justice of the Peace Campbell

The suit of Mrs. Emma Fetters vs. Justice of the Peace Campbell came up for a hearing in Judge Emmet Seawell's department of the Superior Court last Monday on a petition for a writ of review.

Mrs. Fetters seeks to secure an order of the court to rescind the fine of $100 imposed against her by the defendant at the time the justice of the peace found her in contempt and sentenced her to imprisonment for twenty-four hours and fined her $100. A writ of habeas corpus has been granted Mrs. Fetters by the Appellate Court. The matter was submitted to the court. Attorney W. F. Cowan represented the plaintiff and Assistant District Attorney Geo. W. Hoyle appeared for the defendant.

Mammy's Dream

It Was Thought to Be Superstition, but It Was True.

By HARRIET L. GEDDES.
Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

In Alabama in antebellum days was a fair plantation comprising many hundred acres and many hundred slaves. On an elevated spot stood the mansion, a great square house with "galleries" surrounding every story and shaded by high trees. In the rear were the homes of the negroes, a line of cabins, kept clean by frequent coats of whitewash. The plantation, now cut up, is the site of large cotton mills. This property was owned by a child six months old. Its grandfather and its father had both died within a brief period, leaving a young widow, mother of the heir at law, as his guardian and manager of the plantation.

Edward Le Moyne, this child's uncle and brother of his father, was a formidable man, who, under the pretense of assisting his sister-in-law in the management of her property, established himself in the house and assumed control. Mrs. Julian Le Moyne, the widow, had not invited him to do so, but, being a very gentle feminine person, had not the will power to prevent him. Edward Le Moyne in his youth had been wild. Indeed, he had disgraced himself, and his father had willed the property to his brother Julian. When Julian died and Edward commenced the role of assistant to the mother of the child, who had inherited the property, the mother was sure his object was to get rid of the heir that he might become the owner himself.

Edward Le Moyne had married a woman beneath his family, by whom he had a son. Had Edward brought them to the plantation to live Mrs. Julian would not have had the will power to prevent his doing so. Instead he established them in a town near by, and Mrs. Julian knew very well that the next move would be, when Edward had got rid of her son, to the manor house.

As might have been expected, the child fell ill. Edward Le Moyne saw him lying in his mother's arms unconscious. She accused him of having poisoned the boy and, summoning more fortune than she had displayed before, ordered him out of the room. Quailing before her, he retired. Two days later he saw a little coffin carried to the family burying ground on a hill near by, followed by the widow and a number of her house servants, who were devoted to her. When she returned to the manor house she packed her belongings and the same day took her departure.

Edward Le Moyne took possession of the plantation, brought his wife and son, then ten years old, to the mansion and lived there a lonely life. None of the neighboring planters would have anything to do with him, and his slaves hated him. Twenty years later his son, Tom, who had come into possession of the property, with a view to establish relations with the neighboring planters, gave a ball. He was no better liked than his father had been, and the acceptances were few. Nevertheless they were sufficient for a merry-making. Among the guests was Proctor St. Clair, a young man who had been brought up by a relative and extremely popular on account of his high sense of honor, his independent character and other manly traits. Another guest was Caroline Archard, the belle of the country round about. Tom Le Moyne was ambitious to win this girl, thinking that a marriage with her would gain him an entrée into the aristocratic families in his neighborhood.

But hardly had the guests arrived and the festivities begun before Le Moyne observed that Miss Archard was manifesting a decided preference for young St. Clair. The traits of the father showed themselves in the son. He resolved to work by underhand means, relying largely on assurance to carry his point. When his guests were ready to depart he invited them to all to remain as a house party for as long as they would. A dozen accepted, among them Mr. St. Clair and Miss Archard, both secretly desiring to avail themselves of the opportunity to be together. Le Moyne was especially urgent that St. Clair should remain, promising him every facility for enjoyment.

Le Moyne used his privileges as host to assign himself in all rides, drives and other amusements to escort Miss Archard. Nevertheless he saw that the moment she was free she and St. Clair seemed to fall together naturally. One morning after breakfast St. Clair returned to his room for some article of clothing and was hunting for it in the closet when, hearing a step, he turned and saw Le Moyne come quickly into the room, pull out a bureau drawer, drop something in it and retire hastily, as he had come in. St. Clair, being in the closet, had not been seen. A moment after his host had left the room he went to the bureau drawer and took out a small box containing several articles of jewelry. He was filled with astonishment, horror and indignation. It was evident to him that Le Moyne had placed the jewels in his drawer, intending to accuse him of having stolen them. St.

Clair closed the door and spent half an hour deliberating. At the end of that time he took the jewels to Miss Archard and told her how he had come by them. She had experienced enough of Le Moyne's attentions to her to divine his object. Then St. Clair took the jewels to Le Moyne, whom he found with several of his guests, and told him where he had found them. Le Moyne colored and stammered that some of the house servants must have stolen them and temporarily hidden them in St. Clair's room. "You lie!" said St. Clair. "I saw you come to my room and place the box in my drawer."

Le Moyne raised his cane and struck his accuser. St. Clair attempted to strike back, but the others interfered. At that time in the south such an affair must be settled under the code duello. The accusation against Le Moyne could only be wiped out in blood. He knew that it could not be wiped out at all. There was not one of his guests but would believe the word of St. Clair in preference to his own.

With the dogged spirit that possessed him, Le Moyne proposed that they should settle the affair at once. St. Clair was agreeable, and, though the others present advised delay, the two principals were too hot for it. Rapier were the weapons most used, and there was sufficient space in the room where they were. The adversaries, in shirt and trousers, faced each other, swords were handed them, and they began to fence.

Le Moyne, true to the instincts of his race, was cool. Not even the truth of the charge could unnerve him. St. Clair, on the contrary, was so shocked, so indignant, at the base attempt to put a stigma upon him and rob him of the girl with whom he had just plighted his troth that he fought wild. The result was that in a few minutes he received a sword wound in the side which took him out of the fight. He was carried to his room and a surgeon sent for, who pronounced him in danger of his life. Of course removal was out of the question.

The first Miss Archard heard of the matter was that her lover had been stabbed by her host and was lying in his chamber in a critical condition. She flew upstairs and in another moment was bending over him. "Why," she moaned, "did we come into this house? It is accursed." At the moment an old negro woman entered and heard the words. "No, missy," she said, "de house ain't 'cursed'. Hit's de people in it. Don't worry, honey. I had a dream las' night. I dreamed I saw a picection goin' to a grave takin' a baby coffin. An' I saw 'em buryin' de coffin. Den when dey all go way I saw de baby rise out o' de groun', an' he was growed to be a fine young man. An' he said, 'Mammy, my dear ole mammy! He put his arm around my neck an' kissed me. 'Tis come of age today.' 'I know wha' de dream meant. Don't yo' worry, honey. Hit's all comin' out right.'"

The lovers well knew the superstition of the colored race and thought nothing of her words. But her prediction that it would all come out right proved true. It was a month before St. Clair could be moved, and during this period Miss Archard came every day to nurse him, though never once did she deign to notice Le Moyne. One day, shortly before the surgeon gave permission for the removal, the negro who had told her dream came into the room in which St. Clair was lying. Miss Archard sitting beside him. The old woman looked at the door and approached the bed with her finger on her lips.

"Is it de fir' ob August?" she asked. "Yes, aunty." "Lissen, I got a secret I'm gwine to tell yo'. I promise missy I nebbet tell twill dis day, cos dis de day yo'. Mars' Julian!" "Julian? I'm not Julian. I'm Proctor. Something is the matter with you, aunty. You're gone daft." "Jus' yo' wait, honey. Mars' Julian, yo' twenty-one years ole dis berry day. Reckon I ought to know. I'm yo' mammy."

By this time she had caught their attention. "Yo' ma, she lib heah, an' Mars' Le Moyne, Mars' Tom Le Moyne's father, he come in to run de plantation Missy 'fraid her baby git poisoned so Mars' Le Moyne 'ud ova de prop'ty. Yo', de baby, git sick. Missy 'frank Mars' Le Moyne poison yo'. So she pe'tend yo' daid. She git a coffin an' she fill it with stones, an' she said to me: 'In heah is de proofs dat my boy is not in de coffin. I tell know all about him, an' on de fir' ob August, 18—, yo' tell him who he is. Den he kin claim de plantation his own self.'"

When the old woman finished the lovers, whose eyes had been opening wider with every word, looked at each other in astonishment. "And this is the mystery that has been hanging over me all my life," said Julian. "And I believe it's all true," added the girl, clasping her hands and drawing a long breath. "Well, aunty, or, rather, my dear mammy, you've kept the secret so long; keep it longer." "Dat I will, honey."

It was more than a month later when one night Julian Le Moyne appeared as a resurrectionist on the hill near the plantation and took up a little coffin lined with lead. In it were stones and the proofs of the identity of the child it was supposed to contain. The proofs established the fact that Proctor St. Clair was Julian Le Moyne and heir to the Le Moyne estate.

He dispossessed his cousin, took possession of his property and married Caroline Archard.
